Our tax investigation service is backed by an insurance policy under which Wellden Turnbull Ltd (“we”) has insured against the cost of dealing with tax investigations for income tax, corporation tax, capital gains tax, value added tax and national insurance contributions. We are the insured party, and can claim our fees when we defend you against an HMRC investigation as follows:

- It is for our fees; and
- up to £125,000 (except as set out below)

What enquiries are covered?

- IR35 status enquiries, provided that there is a written contract that has been followed; and
- attendance at HMRC visits to inspect your accounting, PAYE and VAT records (a limit of £5,000).

What is not covered?

- HMRC specialist investigations, civil investigations of fraud, criminal investigations, fraud investigation services, counter avoidance sections and codes of practice 8 and 9 cases;
- schemes that are, or that should have been, disclosed under the disclosure of tax avoidance schemes rules (DOTAS) or on which the GAAR panel have ruled against and, at the discretion of the insurers, some “bespoke” tax planning arrangements;
- claims arising out of deliberate non-disclosure or poor record keeping, or following a voluntary disclosure or costs of third party valuations;
- any additional tax, interest and penalties;
- enquiries into returns submitted more than 90 days late;
- if revised accounts must be prepared following an enquiry;
- where we, or our insurers, consider that there is no arguable case; and
- if we cannot, for any reason, claim on our insurance.

Who is covered?

- Our clients, where we have been engaged to submit a tax return before an enquiry notice has been issued; and who have paid the fee and received confirmation of cover.
