

Pensions - Tax Reliefs

Types of pension schemes

There are two broad types of pension schemes from which an individual may eventually be in receipt of a pension:

- Workplace pension schemes
- Personal Pension schemes.

A Workplace pension scheme may either be a defined benefit scheme or a money purchase scheme.

A defined benefit scheme pays a retirement income related to the amount of your earnings, while a money purchase scheme instead reflects the amount invested and the underlying investment fund performance.

The number of defined benefit pension schemes has declined in recent years in part due to the regulations imposed upon the schemes and the cost of such schemes to the employer.

All employers will soon need to provide a workplace pension scheme due to auto-enrolment legislation and these are likely to be money purchase schemes.

A Personal Pension scheme is a privately funded pension plan but can also be funded by an employer. These are also money purchase schemes. Self-employed individuals can have a Personal Pension.

We set out below the tax reliefs available to members of a money purchase Workplace scheme or a Personal Pension scheme.

It is important that professional advice is sought on pension issues relevant to your personal circumstances.

What are the tax breaks and controls on the tax breaks?

To benefit from tax privileges all pension schemes must be registered with HMRC. For a Personal Pension scheme, registration will be organised by the pension provider.

A money purchase scheme allows the member to obtain tax relief on contributions into the scheme and tax free growth of the fund. If an employer contributes into the scheme on behalf of an employee, there is, generally no tax charge on the member and the employer will obtain a deduction from their taxable profits.

When the 'new' pension regime was introduced from 6 April 2006 no limits were set on either the maximum amount which could be invested in a pension scheme in a year or on the total value within pension funds.

However two controls were put in place in 2006 to control the amount of tax relief which was available to the member and the tax free growth in the fund.

Firstly, a lifetime limit was established which set the maximum figure for tax-relieved savings in the fund(s) and has to be considered when key events happen such as when a pension is taken for the first time.

Secondly, an annual allowance sets the maximum amount which can be invested with tax relief into a pension fund. The allowance applies to the combined contributions of an employee and employer. Amounts in excess of this allowance trigger a charge.

There are other longer established restrictions on contributions from members of money purchase schemes (see below).

Key features of money purchase pensions

- Contributions are invested for long-term growth up to the selected retirement age.
- At retirement which may be any time from the age of 55 the accumulated fund is generally turned into retirement benefits - an income and a tax-free lump sum.
- Personal contributions are payable net of basic rate tax relief, leaving the provider to claim the tax back from HMRC.
- Higher and additional rate relief is given as a reduction in the taxpayer's tax bill. This is normally dealt with by claiming tax relief through the self assessment system.
- Employer contributions are payable gross direct to the pension provider.

Persons eligible

All UK residents may have a money purchase pension. This includes non-taxpayers such as children and non-earning adults. However, they will only be entitled to tax relief on gross contributions of up to £3,600 per annum.

Relief for individuals' contributions

An individual is entitled to make contributions and receive tax relief on the higher of £3,600 or 100% of earnings in any given tax year. However tax relief will generally be restricted for contributions in excess of the annual allowance.

Methods of giving tax relief

Tax relief on contributions are given at the individual's marginal rate of tax.

An individual may obtain tax relief on contributions made to a money purchase scheme in one of two ways:

- a net of basic rate tax contribution is paid by the member with higher rate relief claimed through the self assessment system
- a net of basic rate tax contribution is paid by an employer to the scheme. The contribution is deducted from net pay of the employee. Higher rate relief is claimed through the self assessment system.

In both cases the basic rate is claimed back from HMRC by the pension provider.

A more effective route for an employee may be to enter a salary sacrifice arrangement with an employer. The employer will make a gross contribution to the pension provider and the employee's gross salary is reduced. This will give the employer full income tax relief (by reducing PAYE) but also reducing National Insurance Contributions.

There are special rules if contributions are made to a retirement annuity contract. (These are old schemes started before the introduction of personal pensions).

The annual allowance

The level of the annual allowance was originally set at £40,000 for 2015/16 but this is increased to £80,000 for 'pension input periods' ending in, or contributions paid from, 6 April 2015 to 8 July 2015.

This is as a result of changes being made to pension input periods in the Summer Budget 2015. The annual allowance for contributions from 9 July 2015 to 5 April 2016 is the balance of the unused allowance of £80,000 with an overriding cap of £40,000. For 2016/17 the annual allowance will revert to £40,000.

Any contributions in excess of the £40,000 annual allowance are potentially charged to tax on the individual as their top slice of income. Contributions include contributions made by an employer.

The stated purpose of the charging regime is to discourage pension saving in tax registered pensions beyond the annual allowance.

Most individuals and employers actively seek to reduce pension saving below the annual allowance, rather than fall within the charging regime.

Changes from April 2015

Individuals who are eligible to take amounts out of their pension funds under the new flexibilities from 6 April 2015 but who continue to make contributions into their schemes could trigger other restrictions in the available annual allowance. Under the rules, the annual allowance for contributions to money purchase schemes is reduced to £10,000 in certain scenarios. This is explained later in this factsheet in 'accessing your pension'.

Changes from April 2016

From April 2016 the government intends to introduce a taper to the annual allowance for those with 'adjusted annual incomes' over £150,000. Adjusted income means, broadly, a person's net income and pension contributions made by an employer. For every £2 of adjusted income over £150,000, an individual's annual allowance will be reduced by £1, down to a minimum of £10,000.

To ensure the measure works as intended, pension input periods are to be aligned with the tax year (rather than the complex rules which applied before 9 July 2015).

The rate of charge if annual allowance is exceeded

The charge is levied on the excess above the annual allowance at the appropriate rate in respect of the total pension savings. There is no blanket exemption from this charge in the year that benefits are taken. There are, however, exemptions from the charge in the case of serious ill health as well as death.

The appropriate rate will broadly be the top rate of income tax that you pay on your income.

Example

Anthony, who is employed, has taxable income of £120,000 in 2015/16. He makes personal pension contributions of £50,000 net in March 2016. He has made similar contributions in the previous three tax years.

He will be entitled to a maximum £40,000 annual allowance as he has made no contributions before 9 July 2015.

| | |
|----------------------------|---------------------------------|
| Gross pension contribution | £62,500 |
| Less annual allowance | (£40,000) |
| Excess | £22,500 taxable at 40% = £9,000 |

Anthony will have had tax relief on his pension contributions of £25,000 (£62,500 x 40%) and now effectively has £9,000 clawed back.

The tax adjustments will be made as part of the self assessment tax return process.

Carry forward of unused annual allowance

To allow for individuals who may have a significant amount of pension savings in a tax year but smaller amounts in other tax years, a carry forward of unused annual allowance is available.

The carry forward rules apply if the individual's pension savings exceed the annual allowance for the tax year. The annual allowance for the current tax year is used before any unused allowance brought forward. The earliest year unused allowance is then used before a later year.

Unused annual allowance carried forward is the amount by which the annual allowance for that tax year exceeded the total pension savings for that tax year.

This effectively means that the unused annual allowance of up to £40,000 (2013/14 and prior years £50,000) can be carried forward for the next three years.

Importantly no carry forward is available in relation to a tax year preceding the current year unless the individual was a member of a registered pension scheme at some time during that tax year.

Example

Assume it is March 2016. Bob is a self employed builder. In the previous three years Bob has made contributions of £30,000, £20,000 and £30,000 to his pension scheme.

As he has not used all of the £40,000 (2013/14 and prior years £50,000) annual allowance in earlier years, he has £60,000 unused annual allowance that he can carry forward to 2015/16.

Together with his current year annual allowance of £40,000, this means that Bob can make a contribution of £100,000 in 2015/16 without having to pay any extra tax charge.

The lifetime limit

The lifetime limit sets the maximum figure for tax-relieved savings in the fund remains at £1.25 million for 2015/16.

If the value of the scheme(s) exceeds the limit when benefits are drawn from the scheme there is a tax charge of 55% of the excess if taken as a lump sum and 25% if taken as a pension.

The Chancellor has announced that for the tax year 2016/17 onwards the lifetime allowance will be reduced to £1 million. It will then be indexed annually in line with CPI from 6 April 2018.

Accessing your pension

In Budget 2014, George Osborne announced 'pensioners will have complete freedom to draw down as much or as little of their pension pot as they want, anytime they want'.

The changes came into effect on 6 April 2015 for individuals who have money purchase pension funds.

Under the previous system, there was some flexibility in accessing a pension fund from the age of 55:

- tax free lump sum of 25% of fund value
- purchase of an annuity with the remaining fund, or
- income drawdown.

For income drawdown there were limits, in most cases, on how much people could draw each year.

An annuity is taxable income in the year of receipt. Similarly any monies received from the income drawdown fund are taxable income in the year of receipt.

From 6 April 2015, the ability to take a tax free lump sum and a lifetime annuity remains but some of the restrictions on a lifetime annuity have been removed to allow more choice on the type of annuity taken out.

The rules involving drawdown have changed.

Access a pension fund from the age of 55

Access to the fund will be achieved in one of two ways:

- allocation of a pension fund (or part of a pension fund) into a 'flexi-access drawdown account' from which any amount can be taken over whatever period the person decides
- taking a single or series of lump sums from a pension fund (known as an 'uncrystallised funds pension lump sum').

When an allocation of funds into a flexi-access account is made the member typically will take the opportunity of taking a tax free lump sum from the fund (as under the previous rules).

The person will then decide how much or how little to take from the flexi-access account. Any amounts that are taken will count as taxable income in the year of receipt.

Access to some or all of a pension fund without first allocating to a flexi-access account can be achieved by taking an uncrystallised funds pension lump sum.

The tax effect will be:

- 25% is tax free
- the remainder is taxable as income.

Further flexibility for annuity holders

The Chancellor announced just before the Budget 2015 a new flexibility for people who have already purchased an annuity.

The Summer Budget announced a delay to the introduction of the measure. From April 2017, the government will remove the restrictions on buying and selling existing annuities to allow pensioners to sell the income they receive from their annuity for a capital sum.

Pensions - changes to the annual allowance

The government is alive to the possibility of people taking advantage of the new flexibilities by 'recycling' their earned income into pensions and then immediately taking out amounts from their pension funds.

Without further controls being put into place an individual would obtain tax relief on the pension contributions but only be taxed on 75% of the funds immediately withdrawn.

The 'annual allowance' sets the maximum amount of tax efficient contributions. Under the rules from 6 April 2015, the annual allowance for contributions to money purchase schemes will be reduced to £10,000 in certain scenarios. There will be no carry forward of any of the £10,000 to a later year if it is not used in the year.

The main scenarios in which the reduced annual allowance is triggered is if:

- any income is taken from a flexi-access drawdown account, or
- an uncrystallised funds pension lump sum is received.

However just taking a tax-free lump sum when funds are transferred into a flexi-access account will not trigger the £10,000 rule.
